

Just a Little Pain.

The first touch of Rheumatism is a fair warning of much torture to follow. The little pains which dart through the body are not so severe at first, possibly a mere pang, and cause little inconvenience, but if the warning is unheeded, they will multiply rapidly and increase in severity until they become almost unbearable.

Rheumatism as a rule is much severer in winter, though many are so afflicted with it that they are crippled all the year round. Those who felt its first touch last year, may be sure that with the first season of cold or disagreeable weather, the mild pain of last year will return as a severe one, and become more and more intense until the disease has taken completely in its grasp.

Being a disease of the blood of the most obstinate type, Rheumatism can be cured only by a real blood remedy. No liniments or ointments can possibly reach the disease. Swift's Specific (S. S. S.) is the only cure for Rheumatism, because it is the only blood remedy that goes down to the very bottom of all obstinate blood troubles, and cures cases which other remedies cannot reach.

Capt. O. E. Hughes, the popular railroad man of Columbia, S. C., says:

"At first I paid very little attention to the little pains, but they became so much sharper and more frequent that before long I was almost disabled. The disease attacked my muscles, which would swell to many times their natural size, and give me the most intense pain. It was ready to doubt that Rheumatism could be cured, when I was advised to try S. S. S. This remedy seemed to get right at the cause of the disease, and soon cured me completely. I believe that S. S. S. is the only cure for Rheumatism, for I have had no return of the disease for eight years."

The mercurial and potash remedies, which the doctors always prescribe for Rheumatism, only aggravate the trouble, and cause a stiffness in the joints and aching of the bones which add so much to the distress of the disease, besides seriously affecting the digestive organs. S. S. S. (Swift's Specific) is the only cure for Rheumatism because it is absolutely free from potash, mercury or other minerals. It is the only blood remedy guaranteed and never fails to cure Rheumatism, Catarrh, Scrofula, Contagious Blood Poison, Cancer, Eczema, or any other blood disease, no matter how obstinate. Books mailed free. Address the Swift Specific Company, Atlanta, Georgia.

The Miller-Sission-Wallace combination which appears here to-night is said to be the strongest attraction of its class now before the public. The entertainment offered is comedy, music and character sketches. Polk Miller in his imitable impersonations of old time negro, with songs, stories and banjo playing, is without doubt the strongest artist in his line now on the stage. Jolly Oscar Sission a finished comedian, and petite Ester Wallace, a young and pretty vocalist and actress, give a delightful comedy sketch entitled, "Cousin Ella's Visit From The Country."

Constable Plummer went over to Hazel Green, Saturday, and recaptured Sam Patrick, the white man who is charged with stealing a horse and buggy from Frank Ingels. Plummer caught Patrick at Mt. Sterling last Monday. But Patrick got away with the above result. When apprehended Patrick had in his possession a mare belonging to Bob Gillespie, of near Millers Station, and a mare belonging to James Rogers, of Cane Ridge, and a mule and buggy, owners unknown. Plummer spent four days trailing Patrick, who was lodged in the Carlisle jail to await trial.

HE LOST THE MATCH.

ENOS WAS GREAT, BUT THE OTHER MAN HAD A TRICK THAT BEAT HIM.

A Contest Between Horn Players of Rival Shows That Was Witnessed by the Citizens For Miles Around and Umpired by the Mayor of the Town.

"I suppose," said the old circus man, "that the greatest bass horn player that ever lived was Enos Stulkinton. He played the bass horn in our band. There have been men with a better knowledge of music, perhaps, and some with a more finished style, but none that could touch him in producing thunder. His playing came to be one of the features of the show. He was a star attraction where he was known, but to most people he came as a surprise, something more than they had expected, and they enjoyed him all the more on that account. For instance, at every performance, before the actual beginning of the show, we used to give a band concert, and Mr. Stulkinton would begin to get in his fine work there. As the people listened to his first thunderous 'oomphahs!' they were amazed. But when they heard the canvas of the great tent flap in unison with the blasts of his horn they all laughed, and thereafter throughout the performance they all paid close attention when Enos raised the instrument.

"We tried, of course, always to make a route for the show that wouldn't conflict with anybody else, for there were plenty of towns that wouldn't stand but one show at a time. Two would lose money in them, however good they might be. But sometimes we ran against some stubborn man that wouldn't give way, and then there was nothing to do but to show and beat him if we could.

"Once, when we struck a town with another show, we learned somehow that they had a great bass horn player in their band, and of course we challenged 'em for a contest. And they took up the challenge very promptly. There wasn't much time to prepare for it, but we billed the town in an hour and got permission to put up a stand on the public square, because it was to be a free exhibition, and that attracted attention.

"The contest was at noon, and of course the two bands played as accompanists of the horn players. And that made a big band concert, and the crowd was something enormous. The terms were that each man was to play once, and then a vote of the people was to be taken. The man defeated in that round had a right to call for another. If the man defeated in the first round won the second, the man who won the first round had a right to call for a third round. But the winner of two rounds by the vote of the people was to be declared the winner of the contest.

"Well, the men in our show bet every dollar they could rake and scrape on Enos, and some of the more gentle hearted of them thought they were just robbing the men in the other show. Our old man not only bet all his money, but he bet the idol of his heart, the famous old giraffe of our show, against the other show's moth eaten buffalo, and he was so dead sure that he threw in a cinnamon bear to boot.

"Our side had the first inning, and our band showed 'em how to play, and then Enos stood up for his solo. And how he did make the thunder! It was 'oomphah, oomphah, oomphah!' as it had never been heard before, and he fairly carried the people off their feet.

"Then the other band played a tune, and their man got up. And there's no use talking, he raised more thunder than Enos did and set the people shouting.

"Then the mayor got up to take the vote, as he'd agreed to do, and he was interested now as much as anybody. And the people voted for the other man, as we expected they would. But we hadn't any doubt about the final result, for we thought that Enos would unshackle now and break away and make the blow of his life. And he did. We, who had been hearing him for years, had never heard him approach what he did now. It was wonderful. He set the people wild, and we thought we had 'em sure.

"But the other man's very first 'oomphah!' made us tremble, and as he went on we knew we were lost, money, giraffe, everything. We'd never heard anything like this before. It wasn't just simple peals of thunder—it was a thunder factory in full blast and working with a double force of men. There could be only one verdict.

"That afternoon the whole town went to the other show and left our big tent empty. The other people came over for the animals they'd won before show time. They wanted to take 'em over and walk 'em around in their ring. The old man had 'em brought out. When the giraffe realized what had happened, he wound his neck around the center pole and wouldn't budge. But the old man finally persuaded him, and over he went to be made a show of in the other circus.

"Enos Stulkinton never blew a bass horn again. He'd had the opportunity of his life, had missed it and he hadn't the heart. After that he always blew a baritone.

"For my own part, I always thought there was a trick in it. Don't you know, there are things that look fair and square on the face of them that you feel certain, all the same, are off, in some way. Well, I knew there was something wrong about that man's bass horn playing, and years afterward I heard what it was. He had a bellows attached to the horn, with a hole in the side of the horn for the nozzle of the bellows, and the bellows inside his clothes out of sight, and a rod running down to a treadle under his foot. He re-enforced his own blowing with blasts from this bellows, and, of course, the man didn't live that could stand up against him.

"We told Enos about this, but it was too late. He'd lost his audience, and was so humiliated that he had been a champion.

HOW TO FIND OUT.

Fill a bottle or common glass with urine and let it stand twenty-four hours: a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys. When urine stains linen it is evidence of kidney trouble. Too frequent desire to urinate or pain in the back, is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

WHAT TO DO.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, fulfills every wish in relieving pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passages. It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to get up many times during the night to urinate. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists, price fifty cents and one dollar. You may have a sample bottle and pamphlet both sent free by mail. Mention The Paris (Ky.) News and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Birmingham, N. Y. The proprietors of this paper guarantee the genuineness of this offer. (25p-1mo)
